What the IND asks for at renewal, what I need from you, and how to keep your equity above EUR 4,500

WHAT THE RENEWAL IS ABOUT

To renew a DAFT or DJTT residence permit, the IND (the Dutch immigration service) asks for a balance sheet (balans) and a profit and loss account (winst-en-verliesrekening) for the current and the previous financial year. These must be prepared or checked by an authorised independent expert. Forms 7035 and 7535 state explicitly that a bank statement is not enough.

With these figures the IND checks whether your business is active and whether the invested capital stayed in the business. For most legal forms the minimum is EUR 4,500 of owner's equity: assets minus debts. EUR 4,500 sitting in the bank is a different thing.

Start three to nine months before your permit expires. That leaves time to fix a shortfall in equity before the figures are final.

CHECKLIST: WHAT I NEED FROM YOU

- The end date of your current residence permit.
- Your opening balance sheet or the proof of the deposit at the start.
- Your bookkeeping for the previous and the current financial year. A spreadsheet is a perfectly normal starting point; you do not need bookkeeping software.
- Statements of the business bank account for the same period.
- Your sales invoices and the receipts and invoices for your costs.
- A list of business costs you paid from a personal account before the business account existed. I book these as costs with a capital contribution against them.
- All private withdrawals and private deposits, kept apart from income and costs.
- If your starting capital was a gift: the written confirmation of the person who gave it. A loan does not count as equity.

WORKED EXAMPLE: HOW EQUITY DROPS BELOW EUR 4,500

I see this pattern in several files. A worked example with round amounts:

	Amount	Equity
Deposit at the start	EUR 5,000	EUR 5,000
Profit in year one	EUR 1,500	EUR 6,500
Private withdrawals in year one	minus EUR 3,000	EUR 3,500
Shortfall against EUR 4,500		EUR 1,000

The business made a profit, and still the equity ends EUR 1,000 below the threshold. In the first year private withdrawals often add up to more than the profit. You can repair it with an extra deposit, by withdrawing less for the rest of the year, or with profit in year two that covers the gap. A deposit just before the application does not remove the earlier shortfall from the figures. So check your equity halfway through the first year.

WHAT I OFTEN SEE GO WRONG

- Costs paid from a personal account and never booked. Equity then looks lower than it is.
- A loan from family counted as equity.
- Only a bank statement for the renewal, while the IND wants two financial years of figures.
- An hours log reconstructed afterwards. A short, honest log is worth more.

In the past twelve months four people asked me what exactly the IND wants at renewal. This checklist is the answer I gave them.

The renewal statement with balance sheet and profit and loss account for two years is from EUR 495 excluding VAT within five working days, or EUR 595 excluding VAT within 48 hours.
